

A touch of luxury

Many football clubs have rooms and restaurants within their grounds that they use for companies and other organisations. The people that use these facilities can expect special treatment before the match, during half time and after the match has finished.

Imagine that you are a very important person (known as a VIP) and have been invited to your favourite football club to watch a match. Write an account of your day out. Remember to include details about how you arrived there, what you had to eat, who you met and where you sat.

Handwriting practice lines consisting of multiple horizontal dashed lines for writing.
